All About Polar Bears

The Polar Bear is the world’s largest land predator. Polar bears live around the North Pole or the Arctic. They have thick clear fur that looks white. Under their layer of fur, they have black blubber, a thick layer of fat that helps keep them warm in the freezing cold.

A polar bear can weigh 1,000 pounds or more. They can be eight feet tall. They have strong legs and furry webbed feet that help make them excellent swimmers. Polar bears are carnivores and only eat meat. Their favorite food is seals. They can smell a seal under the thick ice!

Mother bears usually give birth to twins and take very good care of their cubs. They dig down in the snow to make a den for shelter for them.
All About
Polar Bears

Name _______________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________